National End of life Intelligence Network (NEoLCIN) release a new report: older people died in hospital and new website is now launched

A new report has been published in the Palliative and end of life care series and looks at deaths in hospital for people aged 75 years and older in 2017. Differences by age, sex deprivation are explored. In addition, the length of admissions ending in hospital death is examined.

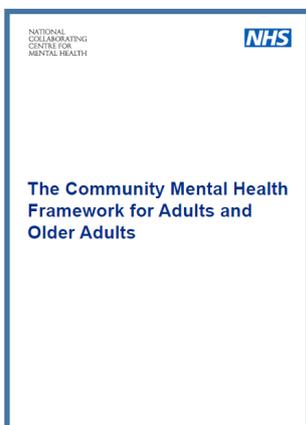

NEoLCIN has a new Palliative and end of life care website presence. These new pages bring together their profiles, data and intelligence, reports and resources onto one collection page.

The community mental health framework for adults and older adults:

This Framework describes how the Long Term Plan's vision for a place-based community mental health model can be realised, and how community services should modernise to offer whole-person, whole-population health approaches, aligned with the new Primary Care Networks.

New website - "Let's talk loneliness"

Loneliness is a deeply personal experience and research shows that nearly three quarters of us don't feel able to talk about it for fear of being judged in some way. This makes addressing the issue particularly complex for commissioners and service providers.
